as well as in lunar exploration for the United States. Tuesday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration observes its 15th anniversary with the proclamation of National Space Week.

NASA Heralds 15 Years In Space

by Dan Barber
Echo staff writer

Bay St. Louis Mayor Warren Carver, along with Mayor Steve Saucier of Pass Christian and mayor pro tempore John Longo of Waveland, have proclaimed the first week in October as Space Week in honor of the 15th anniversary of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

NASA was created by the government on Oct. 1, 1958, to bear the responsibility of moving the country forward into the space age, and to maintain American leadership in the closely related field of aeronautical research.

Now 15 years and four Presidents later, NASA receives a budget of $3 to $4 billion per year, down from the expenditures of $5 and $6 billion in the last decade during the peak years of the Apollo program.

Comprising a big part of NASA's space program has been the Mississippi Test Facility centered here in Hancock County. MTF, which saw ground being broken for its $130 million facilities in May of 1963 has evolved along with the rest of the space program. Developed as a centralized proving ground for the initial purpose of acceptance-testing structures and liquid fueled rocket engines for the huge S-IC and S-II stages of the Saturn V launch vehicle, the facilities saw a role change after the Apollo lunar space shots were completed.

Emphasis has shifted in the whole space program from Moon shots to new regions of the solar system, to the Space Shuttle and to more practical uses of space and space technology.

In coordination with the emphasis on Near Earth Space, and the de-emphasis on static test firing of Saturn rocket stages, the Mississippi Test Facility was chosen in Sept. 1970 to be the site for an Earth Resources Lab. Simply put the Earth Resources Lab has utilized the tremendously sophisticated equipment and research that was a part of the Saturn program to develop practical uses of space technology for the investigation of our environmental resources.

The key word at MTF has become "remote sensing." Important land and marine studies of Hancock County and the Gulf Coast area have been accomplished by the use of remote sensors, mounted in aircraft. Data gathered from the remote sensors, which include photographic scanners, infrared scanners, and radar scanners, is used to identify environmental problems and characteristics.

Now with the tremendous national attention focused on our environment and the most efficient use of our dwindling natural resources, the Mississippi Test Facility's Earth Resources Lab plays an important part in the continuing effort to use our vast technological know-how gained in the space programs to combat these problems.

NASA and the space program have turned more and more toward application of space technology to solution of problems closer to home.

In a recent address to the Economic Club of Detroit, Dr. James C. Fletcher, administrator of NASA said, "We are coming to realize more and more that the most important space programs of NASA deal not only with Outer Space, but with the environment of Earth and the quality of life on our home planet. Even our exploration of the other planets leads to a better understanding of Earth's environment and how to protect it. In this decade we are much

Thomas Appeals Court Decision

Attorneys for Albert Thomas, Jr., 21-year-old Slidell man wanted by Hancock authorities in connection with the Aug. 31 murder of a Pearllington grocer, appealed a district judge's decision Tuesday for extradition.

Thomas appeared before 22nd Judicial District Judge Thomas W. Tanner Tuesday morning in Covington for possible extradition to Bay St. Louis. To face charges of accessory to the armed robbery and murder of Forrest Summers, 62, who was shot and killed in his Pearllington grocery during an armed robbery attempt.

Counsel for Thomas filed an appeal following Judge Tanner's decision to extradite. After his August 31 arrest in Slidell, Thomas refused to waive extradition to Hancock County.

State Pollution Control Comm. Says:

1977 Is Deadline For New Bay Sewer Disposal System

Bay St. Louis will have to update its sewerage disposal system by 1977 or the federal government will take action, state officials said at a Tuesday meeting in Waveland.

Members of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Comm. from Jackson came to Waveland to discuss contamination of local waterways by city sewer systems at the request of the newly-formed Jourdan River Anti-Pollution and Improvement Assoc.

Members of the local group, which has been recently chartered, have made repeated appeals over the past two years to state and federal agencies for action in what a group spokesman termed "deplorable contamination of Watts Bayou and Jourdan River" by effluent discharge from the Bay St. Louis sewer system. Anticipated effluent discharge from a proposed Waveland system into Edwards Bayou and Jourdan River is a matter of added concern to the local organization.

In the closed meeting Tuesday, which lasted three hours, commission President Glen Woods told the group that although the Bay St. Louis oxidation pond was acceptable by state and federal agency standards at the time of its installation in 1967, the facility no longer meets present ecological specifications.

Drastic updating of the system will have to be effected by 1977, Wood explained, or city administrators may face federal action. Possible alternatives are for Bay St. Louis to install a more complex system similar to the one Waveland will build, or to make arrangements to include Bay St. Louis waste disposal in Waveland's system, which is not expected to be operable for another two or more years, Wood added.

The Bay system now discharges treated effluent from the pond northward into Watts Bayou via a subsurface pipe and open drainage ditch route. Watts Bayou flows into the Jourdan River and ultimately into the Sound.

The Waveland treatment plant, which will cost more than $1.2 million and has been approved by the Air and Water Pollution Control Comm. as well as the Environmental Protection Agency, has been engineered for treated effluent discharge into nearby Edwards Bayou which also flows into Jourdan River.

Residents in the areas bounded by the three waterways have become increasingly agitated by the propensity of stagnant, slimy matter and accompanying odor in the bayou, which they attribute to discharge from the oxidation pond.

Extensive studies by the Air and Water Pollution Control Comm. and EPA have supported the contention, as well as introduced evidence of other inadequate systems and numerous residential and commercial violations of anti-pollution standards, which compound the problem.

The alternative for both cities of discharging more directly into the Mississippi Sound was ruled out by regulatory federal agencies due to classification of the Sound as a shellfish industry and water sport area. The two bayous and the river are "not classified," the commission stated.

The Jourdan River anti-pollution group has maintained its stringent objections to both present and future waste discharge methods involving the three bodies, despite statements by various authoritative sources describing the relative purity of the treated effluent.

In a Sept. 11 letter to Waveland city attorney Lucien Gex, Jr., Edwin Lewis, a partner in the city's consulting engineering firm, stated, "The effluent from the treatment plant is not considered drinkable; however, its high degree of purity would tend to reduce, by dilution, a polluted bayou rather than add pollution thereto."

The discharge from the Waveland system, Lewis added, would not prevent Edwards Bayou from being as swimmable as a normal private swimming pool.

Attending the Tuesday meeting with Wood were commissioners John H. Smith, Charles N. Chisolm, Robert Monette and Joseph Brown, all from Jackson.

Representing the Jourdan River organization were association officers Thomas Cain, president, Eugene Hathaway, vice-president, Lucien Favre, treasurer and W. A. Aicklen, chairman of the membership committee.

The Jackson contingent left the meeting with the promise that they would, on their return to Jackson, make a detailed evaluation of previous studies of discharge from the Bay St. Louis pond as well as samplings from the bayou. Notification of impending action or decisions would be forthcoming, Wood said.

The next meeting of the anti-pollution association has been set for October 6, 2 p.m. at the Ramada Inn in Waveland. The meeting is open to the public. Aicklen noted.

Couple Charged For Stolen Car, Credit Cards

Waveland police arrested a Flint, Michigan man and his wife Sunday after a complaint call was received at Lil Ray's restaurant on Hwy 90.

James Clifford Waire, 32, and Jaqueline Waire, 33, were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle, possession of stolen credit cards, loitering, carrying a concealed weapon, and public drunkenness.

Patrolmen Terry Holmes and Bert Steffel said they responded to a call that suspicious persons were hanging around a trailer which was parked on the restaurant property.

Investigation following the arrest showed that the car the Waires were driving had been stolen from Flint, Michigan. Police also found about $400 in merchandise which had been charged on credit cards which Mrs. Waire admitted stealing from a friend's home in Birmingham, Ala.

In separate hearings Tuesday night, Justice of the Peace Joseph Dobson found Waire and his wife guilty on all counts, except for possession of a stolen car, which he explained was a felony and consequently not within his jurisdiction to hear. Both were given a total of 180 days in the county jail.

Waveland police also charged a South Carolina man with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia Sunday. Police said Gary Stevens Cameron, 24, of Rocky Hill, S.C., was arrested in front of the Ramada Inn on Hwy 90 West.

Justice of the Peace Joe Dobson found Cameron guilty on all counts and fined him $200 on each drug charge and $25 on charges of soliciting a ride.

In an unrelated case, the manager of the Texan Motel on Hwy 90 west was placed under arrest Monday following a complaint that a person was discharging a firearm in the parking lot of the motel.

SMORGASBORD FOR STRAYS — may have appeal for stray animals but this array of garbage disarray, all on the same street in Bay St. Louis, leaves a lot to be desired for residents and neighbors. It's pretty hard for the city sanitation workers as well, said Superintendent Felix Seeger, because they can't stop to collect the refuse. Seeger said this condition could be avoided if residents would use garbage cans with tight fitting lids or put refuse in plastic bags with tied tops.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Adam

Secret Of Success Works For 70 Years

by Adreer Shortle
Echo News Editor

"Mr. Emile Adams and Miss Alice Berardin (sic) were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the church of Our Lady of the Gulf, Thursday afternoon, at four o'clock. The celebration took place after the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, Dunbar avenue."

The above item was taken from the yellowed pages of the Sea Coast Echo, issue of Sept. 26, 1903. Early Echo reporters, faithful in some detail, were not too accurate at name spellings. The 22-year-old groom's name was Emile Adam and his 18-year-old bride's surname was Berardin. And the ceremony actually took place at St. Joseph's Chapel, still standing in Cedar Point, on the north shore of the Bay of St. Louis. Emile and Marie Alice Adam renewed their wedding vows in a nuptial mass in St. Joseph's Chapel, in celebration of their 70th wedding anniversary. Fr. Tracey of Our Lady of the Gulf, officiated.

The remarkable couple, now 92 and 88 years old respectively, knelt Sunday at the same altar where they had been married 70 years ago, and where they had made their confirmations, attended church every Sunday and went to school together since early childhood days.

The mere fact of a 70th wedding anniversary these days is newsworthy, but the story of the Adams' life together spent in the little Bay St. Louis community throughout the intervening years, makes a charming and heartwarming story.

The only thing that such an accumulation of years has dimmed in Emile Adam is his hearing. His mind and wit are as quick and sharp as they ever were. Tall and slim, he stands erect and gets up every morning at dawn to work in the garden. Marie Alice, whose family came to the Bay area from France when she was only three years old, is petite ("I think she has shrunk a little", he said teasingly), gentle and soft-spoken with cobalt blue eyes. Now snow white, her hair was golden yellow when Emile began courting her.

The Adams grew up together in the Cedar Point area which was settled mostly by families of men who worked at the seafood canning plant on the beach. Both from French families, Emile and Marie Alice grew up bilingually and were class mates at the little school behind St. Joseph's, taught by the St. Joseph nuns who came from Our Lady of the Gulf.

Mr. Adam says he remembers, as a small boy, when the little frame chapel was built by Jesse and Alfred Cowan and Father LeDuc, who was presumably the pastor then.

Emile Adam started his career as a wage earner when he was just a small boy, when he worked for an uncle for $5 a week. Years later when the depression hit, Emile was a family man with six children and he worked for $3 a day. Grateful to have a job at all, "Not too many men in town had a job then," he said, he worked for the Peerless Packing Co. in the ice factory on Blaise Ave.

"I worked every day of my life and I walked to and from my job," he explained.

Although they had known each other ever since either could remember, Emile began courting Marie Alice in earnest when she was 16.

"What did you do for diversion in those days?" he was asked. "How did you court a girl without movies, TV or automobiles?"

"We talked," he shot back, with a twinkle. "And we danced a lot. There were usually dances at somebody's house and everybody went. We did the waltz and the polka and everyone had a very good time. We managed very well."

Marie Alice, an avid and talented gardener, managed to rear six children, keep her house and garden and took care of the church as well. For years, until she had a stroke about eight years ago, she worked at the church and kept the altar filled with flowers and greens year 'round. Well-known and much loved in the neighborhood which they never left, they are known to everyone as Aunt Alice and Uncle Phillip.

Three of their children still survive. A daughter, Mrs. Milton Phillips, lives in Bay St. Louis, a son, Joseph, lives in Little Rock, Ark. and another son, Van is in Green Bay, Wisc.

Emile Adam's philosophy of life reflects his Gallic heritage, and his comments on life today and advice solicited by a visitor, are witty and full of gentle humor.

Asked the secret of 70 years of wedded bliss, he answered, "A good life and a good wife."

ST. JOSEPH'S CHAPEL in Cedar Point, looking very much today as it did 70 years ago, was the scene of a 70th wedding anniversary observance Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Emile Adam. The Adams were married in the chapel in 1903 and reaffirmed their vows there Sunday at a nuptial mass.

He added, "Would you believe me if I told you my wife and I never had an argument? She tended to the house and I went out to work. The house was her business and the work mine."

Any advice to young people getting married today?

"No. There's so much dope and drinking going on they won't listen to you."

Why do you think people are dying so young these days?

"Too much booze, 'specially bad moonshine."

Who disciplined the children in your home?

"She did. I wasn't home that much, because I was always working. Sometimes I came home from work after dark and they were in bed."

What advice would you give parents today for raising children?

"Raise 'em in the church and spank them when they're naughty."

Whatever the formula the Adams followed, it couldn't have been more successful, as they can look back on a long and fulfilled life together—all 70 years of it.

THE SERENITY of a long and enriching life together is reflected in the faces of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Adam, pictured before St. Joseph's Chapel in Cedar Point, where the couple celebrated a rare 70th wedding anniversary Sunday.

A PHILOSOPHY of life from one who is looking at it from the other side of 90 years is explored by Father Tracey, left, of Our Lady of the Gulf Church, with 92-year-old Emile Adam, who with his diminutive wife, Marie Alice, has spent his whole life in the Cedar Point community in Bay St. Louis.

Venereal Disease On Rise In State

"Reported venereal disease cases continued to rise in Mississippi during fiscal year 1973," states Dr. Durward Blakey, Director of Preventable Disease Control, Mississippi State Board of Health.

Gonorrhea, which is presently of epidemic proportions throughout the nation, increased in the state by more than 3,700 cases over last fiscal year with a total of 14,000 cases reported. Syphilis, which usually occurs in outbreaks, decreased slightly with 634 early cases reported; seven fewer than last year.

In an effort to reduce gonorrhea to a controllable level, the State Board of Health supplied materials to health services throughout the state to conduct testing of asymptomatic females. Of the 97,748 tests performed, 6,283 gonorrhea infections were identified. The large majority of persons found to be infected were not aware that they had gonorrhea.

Gonorrhea and syphilis are spread almost exclusively by sexual exposure. Persons having genital sores or discharges, or even people who suspect possible exposure to such lesions are urged to seek attention from a doctor or local health department.

Hancock County United Fund '73

As we approach the 1973 Campaign of the Hancock County United Fund, which kicks off on October 2nd, we are reminded of the large number of wage earners who are employed in other areas, and although they and their families benefit from local United Fund agencies, their contributions are given in their place of employment. We need Your Help.

The agencies included in the Fund are: The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, Catholic Social Services, Hancock County Chapter of The American Red Cross, Hancock County Blood Bank, Area-wide Senior Citizens Project, Retired Senior Volunteer Program (For Persons 60 Years of Age and Older), Boy Scouts, Cypress District, Girl Scouts, Gulf Pines Council, Camp Onward and U.S.O. (Worldwide).

These organizations, which do so much for so many people, are here to serve you and your family every day of the year. By combining the locally needed charitable, service and youth oriented agencies into one single drive, the United Fund has eliminated the need for multiple campaigns. The Fund operates on an open door policy to include any worthy acceptable organization which serves the people of Hancock County.

During the month of September a payroll deduction drive is being conducted by local business men, who are soliciting professional workers, business houses, schools, churches and public institutions. From October 2 to 15 during the general drive-volunteers will make house to house calls on local residents and all will be asked to contribute their fair share through bank deduction, the pledge system or through contributions. This is a neighbor helping neighbor drive. We all receive - nobody loses. We know you will give your fair share.

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE?

One of the things you learn quickly in Washington is that the proposed legislative "cure" is sometimes worse than the disease.

We've all seen comic strip surgeons whose proposed remedies were operating room procedures equivalent of taking arsenic to cure rheumatism. Washington is FULL of comic strip surgeons who are constantly proposing to cure the country's headaches with brain surgery, and one of the patients they are preparing to strap to the operating table is modern medicine itself.

For the past dozen years — while life expectancy increased, infant mortality rates decreased, and the American public generally grew healthier — small groups in Congress and the press have continued to claim there was a health crisis in this country. They have insisted that we tackle the problem with their traditional weapon: money.

In the last 10 years, Congress has passed dozens of bills and spent billions of dollars — your dollars — on health care legislation. Now we hear claims of a crisis because of the low quality of care received by the people who were supposed to benefit from their public health programs. If they are right — if those groups do receive inferior care (and in many cases they do) — it seems to me that we have a good argument against creating any more of the same kind of programs.

Yet there were more than 40 health care bills introduced in Congress just in the last nine months at a total cost, if passed, of more than 261 billion dollars — more than a quarter of a trillion dollars — in just the next four years.

Some of the bills would completely alter the health care system. The plan sponsored by Sen. Ted Kennedy and Rep. Martha Griffiths, would force all Americans to participate in a national program that would provide "free" medical care for everybody.

But it would be very expensive "free" care; while nobody would pay to visit a doctor or to enter a hospital, all of this "free" care would cost the average taxpayer more than twice what he pays now for health care.

Instead of paying between $500 and $600 per family of four, on the average, he would pay nothing to the doctor or hospital — but would pay an additional $1,300 a year in taxes to support the estimated cost of the program! And the actual cost would probably be much higher.

What would all this pay for? Government has continually demonstrated its incompetence in the field of health care. Even its advocates admit that Medicaid has been a costly failure (although they propose, amazingly, to cure it with more government medicine).

In England, the country which has served as the "model" for those who would change our system, more than half a million people were on the waiting list to get into hospitals at the end of 1971, and unless it's an emergency, patients may wait a year or more just to have their tonsils removed.

There is no question that our private medical system — the "patient" — has a headache. We need more doctors; we need even better medical care; we need additional incentives to get doctors into rural areas; we in Congress need to cut the red tape that drives hospital and doctor costs up; and we need to stop spending so much money if we are to control the inflation that is causing the cost of everything — health care, clothing, automobiles, houses and ground beef — to climb so rapidly.

We do need to take a long and careful look at the idea of national insurance for catastrophic, or long-term, illnesses. Probably more than the other pieces of health care legislation, this is an issue that requires close congressional scrutiny.

In short, we need to do something to cure the medical system's headaches — preferably through congressional suggestion and private action. But we must not attempt to cure the headache with brain surgery.

Too often the planners report back after such surgery that the operation was a success, but the patient died.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

It's surprising how little the world changes in some respects over the years. We recently came across a case of human nature which proves that neither time nor world-shaking events can alter some people's normal way of thinking.

This case-in-point occurred 171 years ago right here in Mississippi and, from all we have read recently, is being duplicated this very day. The scene is the State university at Oxford, the time is 1862, just before and after the great battle at nearby Shiloh.

The new hospital had just been set up in the university halls under the administration of one T. W. Caskey, who had the usual troubles about supplies and personnel, but principally with the Quartermaster, W. F. Avent, who was one of those individuals who would rather be right than sensible. Col.

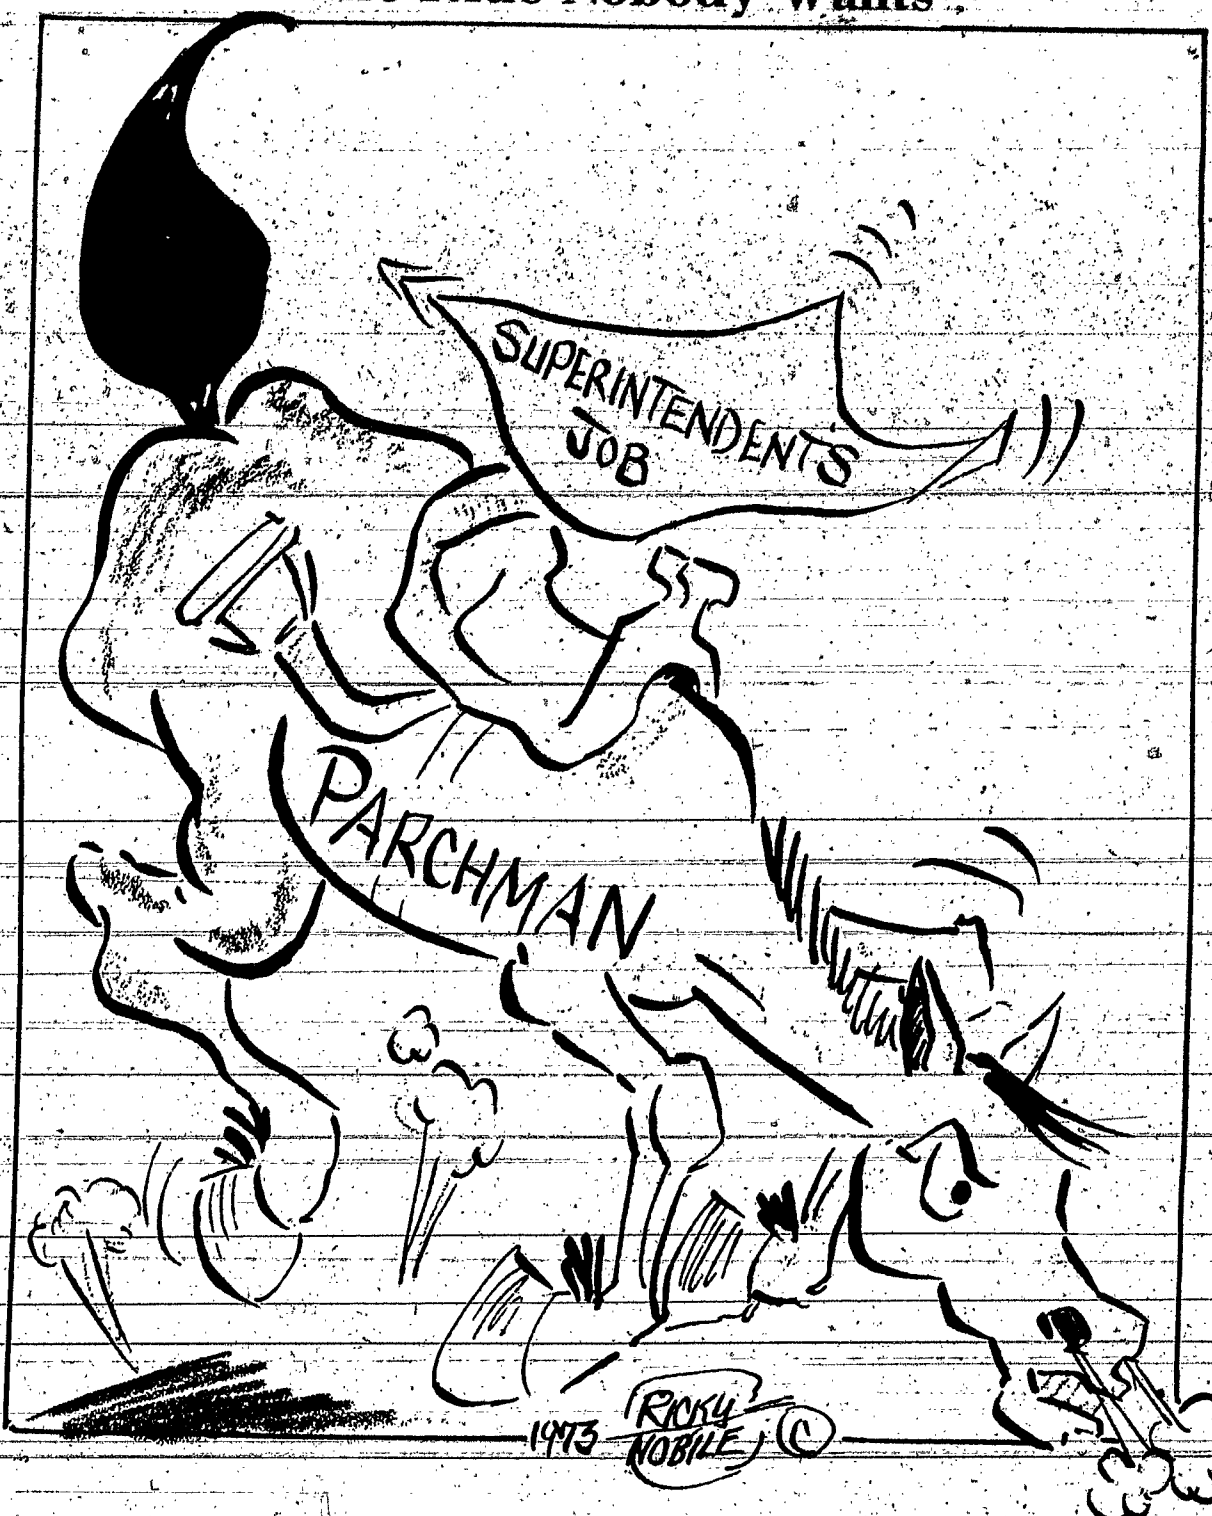

Avent started by throwing his weight around to force Prof. A. J. Quinch, designated by the trustees to care for the university buildings, to give up his spacious house so that the Colonel might have quarters better suited to his dignity and position. There also were two doctors on the staff who were working underground to have the hospital turned over to the Confederate government.

Mr. Caskey seems to have been a wise man: he simply stands aside and lets 'em fight! His comment is, "poor human nature; how man will struggle for petty powers!" And then he makes a very sapient observation to the Governor, John J. Pettus: "I must hold the money power in my hands so as to control things".

The dissidents continued to make trouble until the battle of Shiloh was fought, raising the population of the Oxford Hospital to three thousand wounded and sick soldiers, and after that Col. Avent and the doctors were so busy that they stopped their constant bickering, and poor Prof. Quinch was left to enjoy his house along with a couple of dozen sick and wounded men.

'Twas ever thus! The Roman emperors had the same troubles, and so did the heads of every government from that day to this. We have them right here in Bay St. Louis today when political-minded second-raters essay to enlarge their stature by trying to dominate their fellow-workers. And when you reduce it all to one capsule it seems so futile. Bobby Burns hit the nail on the head when he observed, "Oh, would some power the gifle give us. To see ourselves as others see us!" And as Oxford's Caskey said, doubtless with a shake of his head, "Poor human nature!"

County Agent's Notes

John W. Smith
County Agent
Hancock County

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

Orders for seedling should be placed now with your county forester. Pines cost $7 per thousand delivered to the county. A landowner can get 1,000 pine seedlings by paying only 50 cents delivery charge. Hardwood seedlings cost $14 per thousand delivered.

Forest industries in the South planted 513 million pine and hardwood seedlings during 1972-73. That's more than eight trees for every man, woman, and child living in the South.

FERTILIZER SITUATION

Nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers are both in short supply so it will be a good idea if you can book your needs well in advance of the time you will need them.

Soil testing to determine lime, phosphate and potash needs will let you know which fields most need the fertilizer.

DAIRY NOTES

If you expect your fresh dairy cows to maintain high milk production, you are going to have to feed them properly. Give them all the forage they will eat and enough concentrate for top production. If the cow gets all the top quality forage she will eat, one pound of grain for each three pounds of milk should be about the correct amount of grain to feed.

Don't cut back on grain because of the price. Feed for top production and you should make the most money. With declining numbers of dairy cows, there should be an increasing demand for milk.

SOYBEAN HARVEST

Hill beans, our earliest maturing variety, will be ready for harvest late this month. Dare and Hood soybeans will be close behind in early October. Many of these fields have grown up in weeds that will make combining almost impossible. In such cases, Paraquat may be used to dry and kill the weeds.

Do not use Paraquat until the soybeans are fully mature or yields may be drastically reduced. You may consider soybeans mature when about one half the leaves have fallen and rest are yellowed.

The amount to apply is one-half to one pint per acre with one quart of non-ionic surfactant added in 100 gallons of spray. Use enough volume to get good coverage and allow 10 to 14 days for maximum effectiveness. Paraquat is the only chemical labeled as a harvest aid for oil mill soybeans.

Our Readers Write

Enclosed you will find a copy of a letter to the City of Bay St. Louis. I feel this could become of prime interest to our community in the near future.

Gentlemen:

I am writing the City of Bay St. Louis once again to complain about the deplorable and chaotic condition which is caused by the City of Bay St. Louis sewage department to me and my private property.

This was initiated when the City of Bay St. Louis built a huge area sewage collection pond in the vicinity of the old L & N sandpit which previously drained through a natural drain southward on and to the Gulf of Mexico.

After building this huge area sewage pond, the City of Bay St. Louis diverted the drainage via pipe line over and across a half mile or more and dumped it into a natural drain that crosses my private property and continues northward to Watts Bayou, creating a synthetic and unnatural drain, therefore bringing about this intolerable and chaotic condition to me and my private property.

I have collected periodic samples for tests, from several different locations over the past years which I feel I am qualified to do, after acquiring the necessary training then joining the U. S. Government services and was assigned to the Sewage and Water Treatment Division and was merited the rating of Specialist First Class also being assisted by a Licensed Professional Nurse who has over 25 years professional experience in a sterile technique of collecting human excretions specimen for tests.

Now, the City of Bay St. Louis has ignored my complaints in the past. I have been forced to choose my attorneys. I have checked their past performances and similar court proceedings and found it very encouraging if this goes to court. By the failure of the City of Bay St. Louis to act on this matter, I am left with only this to look forward to.

Day by day my property damage will increase, hour by hour mine and my wife's health will decrease and minute by minute my patience wears thinner. So I ask for the last time to get, what I consider to be, the City of Bay St. Louis' polluting, rotten, stinking, sickening mess of human sewage disposal drainage off of my private property.

Fine,
John A. Breland

Dear Sir:

This letter is written, out of profound gratitude and recognition of the Mississippi Power Co., for the humane and merciful act of rescue of a frightened and helpless feline, on the top of a tall pine tree, in the Cedar Point area, I received this information just before noon Saturday, so I assume these kind people gave of their own free time, of their skill and ingenuity.

We of the Humane Society were thrilled with joy, and wish to add we are very proud of our Mississippi Power Company.

Local VA News

BY
Chester L. Curvey

A recent survey reveals that many beneficiaries listed on GI insurance policies are not in line with the veterans current wishes. In many cases, a widow who assumes she is the beneficiary, learns for the first time that the insurance does not go to her, but to her husband's mother, or former wife. Both of these cases have happened since I have been your Service Officer. In both cases this probably resulted in hardship for the widow and young children.

The cause of the problem is that the veteran simply never did get around to naming his wife as beneficiary. A typical example, the veteran named his mother as beneficiary when he first took out his policy upon entering service, and when he eventually married he forgot to inform the insurance office to change his beneficiary. When the veteran died, the policy still designated his mother to receive the $10,000 insurance.

In some cases the name of a former wife may still be listed as the beneficiary, and the former wife even though long divorced and remarried will receive the insurance instead of the widow. The insurance office has no choice but to pay the beneficiary named in writing by the policyholder, and is obligated by law to pay the proceeds to the beneficiary of record.

Another thing is that each veteran should review the settlement option that he picked. With the changing of the cost of living over the years, it may be that the option he picked will not pay the beneficiary enough to be of much benefit at today's prices. A suggestion would be to pick option number 1 and let the beneficiary pick the manner in which the premium will be paid.

EVERY VETERAN should be sure he has the correct beneficiary named to receive his GI, or any other insurance for that matter, insurance benefits. Any veteran who wishes to change his beneficiary should contact the VA Center to which he pays his premium. The insurance numbers, as well as the veterans full name and address should be shown.

The Veterans County Service Office located in the Court House is available to assist Veterans in this matter.

Charges Dismissed Against Traveler

Justice of the Peace Joseph Dobson found a Corpus Christi, Texas man not guilty on separate counts of carrying a concealed weapon and of illegal parking Tuesday night.

Richard Roberson, who pleaded not guilty to the charges, was arrested Sept. 23 by Waveland police officers Eugene Hughes and Bert Steffel after Roberson parked his camper van off the highway alongside Waveland Beach to sleep.

Officers Hughes and Steffel said that they were making a routine check on Roberson after they spotted his vehicle parked on Beach Boulevard when it was accidentally discovered that Roberson had a 22-caliber pistol in the glove compartment of his camper. The officers reported to Judge Dobson that Roberson admitted to them at that time that the gun was registered to him.

Counsel for Roberson argued that officers Hughes and Steffel had erroneously charged his client on both counts. Waveland city attorney Lucien Gex, Jr., he said, stated that there was no city ordinance prohibiting persons to park on the shoulder of the road along Beach Boulevard. In addition, counsel argued the law states that it is permissible for a person, who is proven to be a tramp, and who is further proven to be a stranger traveling through unfamiliar surroundings, may legally carry a weapon that would otherwise be illegal.

CHEERING SECTION - Eight young beauties will be cheering on Pearl River Junior College Saturday night September 29 in Biloxi when the Wildcats take on the Gulf Coast Bulldogs. Their 'Cats are currently posting a 3-0 record for the 1973 season and had a 9-1 record in '72, which was the best in the state. Pictured left from top to bottom are Elli Anderson, Allison Wise, Sandy Kilgore, and Bernell Martensen. From right, top to bottom, are Millicent Graham, Sherri Hinton, Jan Moody, and Cheryl McCullough. Sandy, Millicent and Jan cheered the '72 Wildcats to a 22-21 victory over the 'Dogs in the closing seconds of last year's contest, which ended the Bulldogs winning streak at 23.

Senior Citizens Happenings

More than 80 Seniors were on hand Monday at Buccaneer Park for the Gulf Coast Senior Citizens picnic. Everyone brought his own bag lunch. John Rutherford provided the soft drinks, and John Long provided the cakes for dessert. Melvin Altimus brought his grill and a mess of fresh trout and cooked fresh fried trout for everyone. After a good meal and a few rounds of bingo everyone enjoyed relaxing in the sunshine to the music of Flip Johnson and his band. More picnics have been planned for next month at Pearllington and the Kiln.

A real "Soul Lunch," featuring turnip greens, chicken, and cornbread, will be served next Monday, at 12:30 at the Valena C. Jones Center. Mattie Sams will be in charge of the volunteer cooks, helped by Henrietta Edwards and Sarah Williams. The cost will be only 50 cents for Seniors who are registered in the Area Wide Senior Citizens Program, and reservations are needed. All Seniors who haven't already done so should be sure to call the Center at 467-9291 to arrange for reservations and transportation.

Beginning next Wednesday there will be a sewing class—taught by volunteer Agnes Chevis—at the Center on Wednesdays at 9 a.m. A get-together session is planned for October 3, and regular classes will begin on October 17.

HOME OF THE MONTH, chosen by the Bay St. Louis Cleanup and Beautification Committee is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Damians, Jr. at 101 Carlos Court.

GC Research Lab To Study Striped Bass

A grant from the Federal government to conduct a three-year program of striped bass rearing and stocking in Mississippi waters has been received by Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, of Ocean Springs, according to Dr. Harold D. Howse, director. Striped bass are one of the most desirable sport fish known to fishermen.

Total cost of the program is $210,000 funded on a 50-50 basis by the State and Federal governments. The Federal portion will be shared equally by two agencies, National Marine Fisheries Service of the U.S. Department of Commerce and Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

The program will be carried out by the Anadromous Fish Section of GCRL which began working on striped bass in 1967. Key personnel involved are Thomas D. McIlwain, senior marine biologist and section head, and Larry C. Nicholson, marine biologist.

McIlwain said there are two major objectives of this program. "The first is to establish a population of striped bass which will utilize the coastal streams, the estuaries and open Gulf of Mexico waters by stocking striped bass which are known to migrate to the open sea."

"The second goal is to establish a population of South Carolina striped bass into coastal streams."

After studying the distribution, life history and limiting environmental factors of the striped bass in Mississippi waters, GCRL investigators obtained fry from Monck's Corner, South Carolina for a rearing and stocking program.

Some biologists now feel, however, that the South Carolina strain of stripers never venture into salt water and may fail to utilize Mississippi Sound and open Gulf waters.

When a new anadromous fish program was started in 1970, it was decided to rear and stock advanced fingerlings of a strain from further up the Atlantic Coast which is known to migrate to open sea.

In efforts to procure fry from the Chesapeake Bay area for rearing, GCRL workers experimented with hatchery procedures for three years in cooperation with the State of Maryland and personnel from the states of Louisiana, Alabama, Texas, the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and private firms.

This experimentation resulted in procedures for a workable temporary hatchery set up at Vienna, Md., where striped bass fry were produced for distribution to several states for rearing and stocking programs, including Mississippi.

"If we stock sufficient fish into local waters, we will probably establish a naturally spawning population of striped bass as has been accomplished in several other states," notes McIlwain. "A continuous stocking effort over several years will tell us whether it is feasible to establish local fishery for striped bass."

Data from the GCRL stocking program indicates a good survival rate of stripers says McIlwain. Over 200 fish from the original stocking of 9,000 fry in 1969 have been returned to the Laboratory; they range in size up to 11 pounds.

Under the latest anadromous fish program, McIlwain explained, they plan to obtain fry from both South Carolina and Maryland to be reared using raceways at the GCRL Anadromous Fish Hatchery and in ponds at the Mississippi Fish Hatchery at Lyman. Fry will also be produced at GCRL and at Lyman from brood stock reared at these two facilities and from wild brood stock collected from Mississippi waters.

When these fingerlings attain appropriate sizes, they will be marked and stocked into coastal streams. Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi have agreed to alternate marking methods each year in order to be able to evaluate their individual programs, since the three states share common waters and some fish stocked in one state could find their way into another.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF AUDIT

State Auditor

COMMENTS OF STATE AUDITOR RELATING TO AUDIT OF HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI, IN CONNECTION WITH STATE DEPARTMENT OF AUDIT REPORTS FOR FISCAL YEARS 1970 AND 1971 SENT TO NEWSPAPER FOR PUBLICATION, PURSUANT TO PROVISIONS OF CHAPTER 332, MISSISSIPPI LAWS OF 1958

Although one may disagree with some of the conclusions reached and recommendations made by the General Legislative Investigation Committee in its reports to the legislature in 1970, 1971 and 1972 with regard to county expenditures for road and bridge maintenance and construction, and although it is easy to discover and point out weaknesses and defects in the study and analyses of these expenditures and reports, the committee's study and reports are based on the studies and reports of county government, which in most counties occupy a large portion of the time, effort and public money expended by the board of supervisors.

The Hancock County board of supervisors, which has complete jurisdiction over public roads, ferries and bridges of the county, gets 13% of the money spent for road and bridge maintenance from taxes paid on personal property and real estate other than homesteads, which are exempt from road taxes up to an assessed valuation of $5,000 and an area not to exceed 160 acres. This means that very few homeowners in most counties pay any road tax on their home property. From 72 to 92% of the road and bridge money comes from auto road and bridge privilege taxes, which owners of automobiles and small pickup and panel trucks pay as part of the cost of their privilege. The remaining cost of the road and bridge fund of these taxes except $2.75 which goes into the special support fund of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, consists of property taxes, of which a small portion, usually about 10% goes into road funds, most of it going to support public schools and the general county government. These two types of taxes are collected by the county tax collector and, except for a 2-mill property tax sent by that office to the State Treasury, are retained in Hancock County.

Larger truck and bus tags are issued by the State Motor Vehicle Comptroller, although they may be routed to him through the county tax collector. The greater part of these privilege taxes are returned to county governments of the state, being divided among them on the basis of area, population and number of such vehicles registered, in the proportion each county has of the totals of each of these items in the state as a whole. A smaller portion of the revenue from these privilege licenses is used to pay for state highway construction or reconstruction or for redemption of bonds issued for these purposes and interest thereon, and still a smaller portion is used to help pay the operating costs of the Motor Vehicle Comptroller's office and state-wide organization. The total amount to be divided among the counties of the state has been fixed by a legislative act of 1972, which was part of the state highway financing program of that year, and the amount coming to each county government after 1972 will change only when the county's proportionate share of the population and vehicles changes. Currently, between 3 and 7% of the road and bridge revenue in Hancock County comes from this source.

A share of the state tax on motor fuels also goes to counties, every county receiving at least $190,000 each year, with counties having larger area and population receiving a greater part of the balance left in the counties' share than do counties of smaller area and population. There is not a great deal of variation among the counties in the dollars received from this source, however. In Hancock County, this source supplies from 28% to 43% of the road and bridge revenue.

Another major state government contribution to county road funds is the reimbursement to the county of state losses suffered as a result of homesteads being exempted from property taxes for road and bridge purposes. This is paid out of an appropriation made each year out of the state's general fund by the legislature. Due to certain penalty provisions in the statutes, intended to promote better financial management by county government, very few counties, if any, receive full reimbursement for tax losses resulting from homestead exemptions. This money comes chiefly from sales and use and income taxes collected by the state but also in part from a number of other types of taxes or other sources, such as excise taxes on tobacco products, beer and wine, stronger alcoholic beverages, and insurance premiums, corporation franchise taxes, inheritance taxes and several other taxes yielding smaller amounts of revenue, as well as from interest earned on time deposits and profits on wholesale sales of the stronger alcoholic beverages. In Hancock County, this payment from the state's general fund supplies from 3% to 4% of the road revenues.

Another source of money used by some boards of supervisors for road purposes is a part of the county share of severance taxes collected by the state government on oil and gas produced or timber harvested in the county. In Hancock County, this accounted in 1970 and 1971 for almost none of the road fund revenues.

COUNTY EXPENDITURES OF ROAD AND BRIDGE FUNDS

The Federal Bureau of Public Roads, now a part of the Department of Transportation, collects each year a great variety of statistical information from the state highway departments of the fifty states and tries to compile it into tables which make some comparisons readily possible, although the Bureau warns against placing too much reliance on the use of comparative figures reported by different people for a number of different purposes.

From these statistics, however, it can be readily ascertained that Mississippi expenditures for roads by counties and townships are high in comparison with those of most other states. In 1970, the latest year for which we have these statistics, Mississippi ranked 19th in the nation in the total amount spent for these purposes and 5th among 12 Southeastern and South Central states stretching from Louisiana and Arkansas to Virginia. Only six states spent more per registered vehicle on such roads: nine spent more in proportion to their population; nineteen spent more per square or linear mile of rural roads, as shown by the percentage of county roads maintained by the state highway department. The local people who use these roads from day to day are better able to form an opinion as to how well they are maintained in proportion to the money spent on them than anyone visiting them only occasionally or sitting in an office in the capital city or in an office on a university or college campus.

Hancock County spent from its road and bridge funds an average of $706,084 during the six year period from 1964 through 1969, according to Mr. Corkran's study of the information he obtained from the financial statements prepared from county records by the State Department of Audit during those years. $11,427 of this amount represented a duplication, money repaying notes, the proceeds of which had been used to buy equipment which had been included in the expenditures of an earlier year. If one borrowed from a bank to buy a car and counted both the purchase price of the car and the repayment of the principal amount of the notes as expenses, he would be overating the amount he spent, and this fact was overlooked in Mr. Corkran's study. For a single year's costs, these note payments are part of the expenditures, but over the life of the purchase and repayment, the cost would be overstated if both equipment purchases and equipment note payments are included.

In fiscal 1970, total road and bridge fund expenditures in Hancock County totaled $650,220, including $22,143 paid for new equipment, $4,186 for equipment rental or lease and $13,779 for notes issued earlier to secure cash for equipment purchases at that time. In fiscal 1971, the amount actually expended was $650,326, including new equipment costing

Rhodes Is Powerlift Champ Despite Injuries

Joseph (Doc) Rhodes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelius Rhodes of Bay St. Louis was a recent, though battered, winner in the National AAU weight lifting championships held at Scranton, Pa.

Rhodes competed in the 165-pound class of the Senior National Powerlift Championships, winning over 12 other contestants, including two previous national champions.

Rhodes' winning lift of 605 pounds was "even" more remarkable considering the fact that earlier in the meet Rhodes suffered severe chest abrasions when he dropped a 365-pound weight during the bench press portion of his lift. Rhodes had chested to be taken to the hospital for examination but was waylaid when he observed that he stood an excellent chance of winning the meet. He came back to successfully lift the weight despite the then unknown damage to his chest, but collapsed after leaving the platform receiving a cut above his right eye which required 15 stitches.

Rhodes attended St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis and graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi. He and his wife, the former Karen Dean of Pearlman, reside in Jackson.

Current plans call for Rhodes to enter the World meet which will be held in Harrisburg, Pa. in November.

There's more to electricity than meets the plug

Through wise use of your electric service, you not only conserve your money but also our nation's vital natural resources.

8 "Centsible" Tips On Ranges and Ovens

Are you getting the most out of your electric range and oven? Are you retaining the flavor in your food? "Saving over a hot stove" has lost all meaning since the magic of precision electric cooking came on the scene. But even if you're a gourmet cook, we think these tips will help you get the most efficient and economical use out of your electric range and oven.

1. Remove meat from the refrigerator approximately one hour before cooking to shorten cooking time and help conserve energy. When possible, double recipes and freeze the extras for later.

2. Use pots and pans with flat-bottoms to permit close contact with the surface unit. Always match pan size with surface unit size to avoid wasted heat or prolonged cooking. Use a tight-fitting lid to keep heat in pots and pans. Bright, shiny aluminum pans for both oven and surface cooking will aid foods in cooking faster and better. If you are going to use stainless steel, glass, or ceramic pans, reduce oven temperature by 25 degrees.

3. When cooking vegetables, use very little water and cook only until tender. Any time you are cooking in water, use as little as you can. One cup is sufficient for just about anything; most foods will cook in much less. Start water boiling on high heat setting, then reduce to low or simmer. Food won't cook any faster on high; you'll just use more electricity and generate more heat.

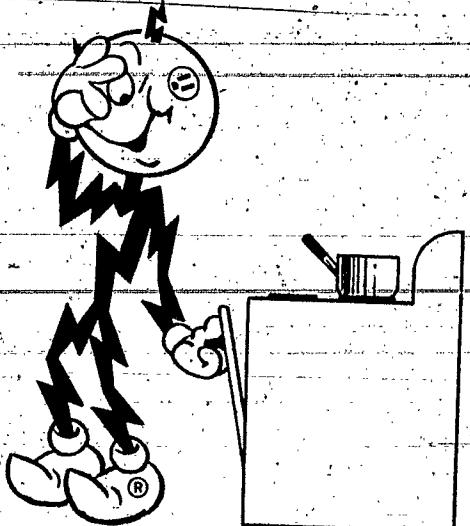

4. Plan meals so more than one dish can be cooked in the oven at one time. You'll conserve both electricity and vitamins by placing vegetables in the oven in a covered casserole along with other dishes. Allow frozen foods time to thaw before cooking to cut down on cooking time.

5. Don't peek! Keep oven door closed for fast, economical baking. There is a 20 percent heat loss every time the oven door is opened, not to mention the increased baking time.

6. Place foods ready for baking into the oven the moment it is preheated. Sufficient preheating time is usually five to ten minutes. You don't have to preheat for broiling or roasting.

7. To prevent heat loss, arrange racks before preheating the oven. If you are using both oven racks, divide the oven into thirds. Stagger pans on each rack for even heat distribution. Pans should not touch each other, the walls, or the oven door.

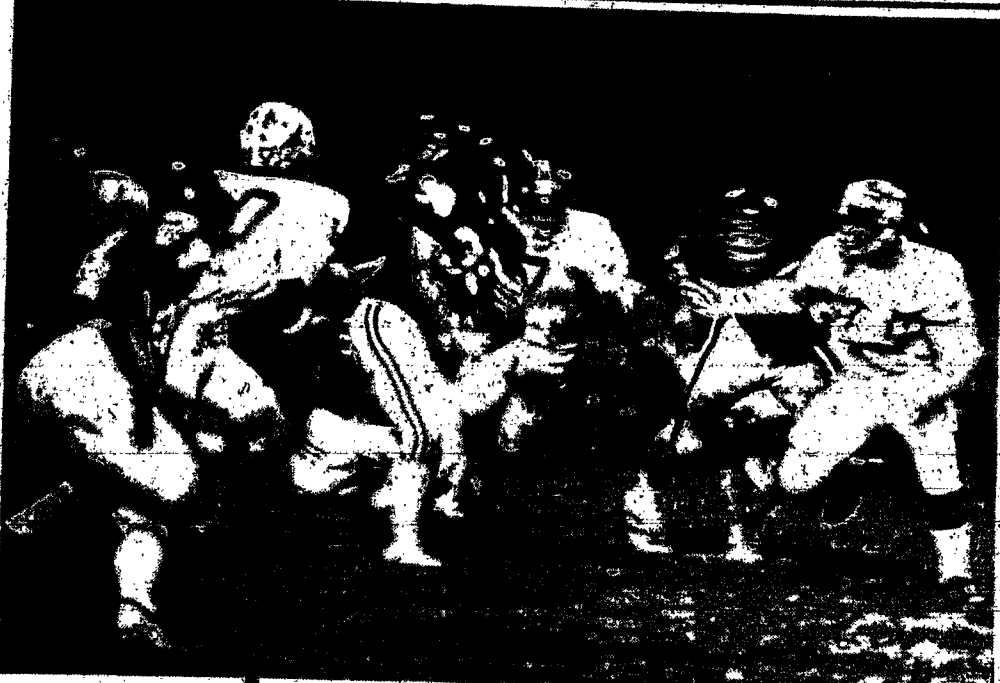

8. Once food is cooked, a temperature setting of 150 degrees will keep it warm without further cooking. Also, when you are through cooking, always check the indicator lights on your electric range to be sure finish cooking on the remaining stored heat.

The weather of the past weekend was ideal for both fishing and hunting. The tides were right and the weather was a little cooler. The water in Pearl River and its tributaries has cleared since a week ago. Bass and perch are hitting again.

On the fishing side speckles have been hitting again on the R.R. Bridge, St. Stanislaus wharf and the American Legion Pier. Big croakers are being caught most everywhere. Some red fish are being gotten.

Saturday ushered in the first segment of the dove season in the South zone. As shooting starts at 12 noon there was no rush to go to the fields. Haven't gotten too much on how many birds were bagged. But you can bet there were quite a few brought home.

There are some mighty good dove shooters hereabout. Among them are August Rauxet and his three sons, Nicky, Keen, and Ronnie, A.C. Mitchell, Harold Zimmerman, Norman Penrose, Ray Garner to mention a few.

We know that Harry Roman, Louis Decell and Hoke Ogden went on the opening day. They are also quail hunters.

Vic Schwartz and Al Leddy's temperatures were up Saturday morning waiting for 12 o'clock to come when they could shoot the prize birds. They said they couldn't say which was best hunting doves or fishing.

Judge Homes was the guest of Mr. Wm. Emmerson at Leland, Miss. He enjoyed a dove hunt in which 50 hunters participated. Judge said all killed their limit. There were plenty doves. The Judge really went for a fishing trip but it turned into a hunting trip. You all know the Judge.

Mourning doves have small heads, slim, streamlined bodies and long pointed tails. They are migratory birds and fast flying. The main foods for doves are seeds and waste grain. Reason for their scarcity in the South now-a-days is that there are not too many fields in which they can feed. We get our share of them by the hardest. The second and third segments of the dove season are best down South. The first segment on doves closes on October 14, followed by two more segments to follow. Doves are known by their soft, five-syllabled coo.

Joe Momony and Miriam are visiting Nick and Gloria Schneider. Joe hopes to retire and live in Bay St. Louis. They have many friends here.

Hard crabs are again plentiful and giving good. They are being caught most anywhere.

Made a trip to Bodge Fishing Camp Tuesday. Believe it or not they had some live bait shrimp. Didn't last too long. Also had hard crabs for sale. Ray, Sam and Wilfred enjoy serving their customers. Have a host to handle all size boats. The camp is up Bayou Caddy. Expect to have live shrimp from now on.

Argie Mitchell was out after bass Wednesday after a short stay in the hospital. He said he made a fair catch. Will be back soon you can bet.

There is a split season on squirrels the first segment opened on Sept. 28th and runs thru Oct. 27. Rabbits may be hunted with guns during open season on any game hunted with guns.

Don't know why Eddie Marquez doesn't go floundering. They have been getting a few lately in front of your place, Eddie.

Still see ducks and geese passing overhead. Must be getting cold up north. This is a good sign. Should be some real shooting this season.

Bream fishing which usually tapers off this time of the year is holding pretty good in most bayous and lakes. They are hitting popping bugs and live bait: minnows, small crayfish, tad poles, etc. on the pole and line.

John Genin has moved into his apartment. Still fixing it up. Should be able to go fishing soon. Missing some good fishing, fellow.

Some sportsmen are busy planting a winter garden, such as turnips, collards, broccoli, carrots. An active fellow can always find something to do. Catching fish, killing game and a small garden can help out on the family grocery budget.

Dick Mestayer and sons Dick and Allen will take to the fields soon. They are all good hunters and fishermen and bring home the bacon.

Jourdan River has always been a favorite with fly and casting fishermen. The river is now clear and some bass and perch are being caught.

In the winter time speckles are caught by trolling, casting and bait fishing. It is excellent for bait fishing for red fish, croakers, sheepshead and other salt water fish. Flounders are gotten by spearing and casting rods with bait.

Rotten Bayou, Bayou LaCroix and the river proper will be excellent for fly fishing and casting with under water baits from now on.

Ever try catching flounders at the mouth of Bayou LaCent by casting with a smoky shrimp? It pays off at times.

Did you know that Woodcock fly in two weeks and are fully grown in 25 days? Earth

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK is Harris Boudreaux, a member of the Bay St. Louis police department. Harris enjoys the outdoors and when of duty fishes, crabs and casts for shrimp. He's good with the cast net and gets his share when they're running. He also does some hunting.

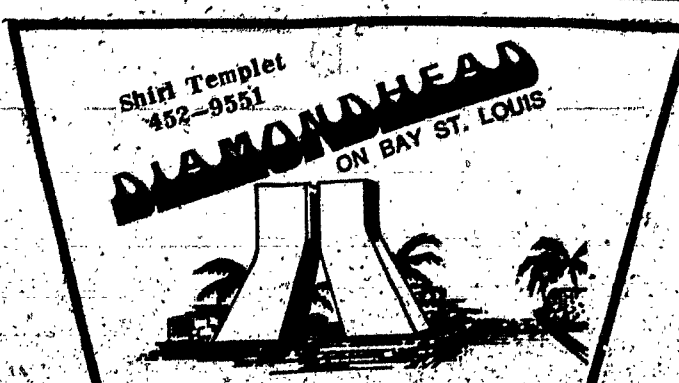

worms are its major food and a bird may consume its own weight daily. Few hunters hunt Woodcock hereabout. A good eating bird about the size of quail or snipe. They are found in marshy places. Hard to hit on the wing. Usually hunted with dogs. Can be kicked up.

Clois Dedeaux took his wife, Geneva, his daughter Pamela and his son Mike on a boating and fishing trip one day last week. The trip finally wound up as a picnic with sandwiches, etc. Some nice fish were caught including red fish and flounders. It was the first boat trip for Mrs. Dedeaux.

Believe it or not skiers just won't give up. There were plenty of them up Jourdan River and Bayou LaCroix Sunday. They should learn to respect others who are fishing. The waters belong to everybody.

VON ANTZ EARNS WINGS Navy Ensign Gerald W. Von Antz, son of Mrs. Geraldine Von Antz of 422 Sears Ave., Waveland, was designated a Naval Aviator and received his "Wings of Gold" during ceremonies in Pensacola last week.
